VI. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions set on it :

When I go to a stranger's library, I wander around the book shelves to learn what sort of a person a stranger is and when he comes in, I feel that I know the key to his mind and the range of interests. A house without books is a characterless house, no matter how rich the Persian rugs and how elegant the attire and the ornaments. The Persian rugs only tell you whether he has got money but the books tell you whether he has got a mind as well. It is not the question of money that we don't buy the books. Books are the cheapest as well as the best part of the equipment of a house. You can begin your library with the expenditure of a couple of shillings. Nearly all the best literature in the world is at your command at two shillings a volume. For fifty pounds you can get a library of fifty books. Even if you don't read them yourself, they are priceless investment for your children. What delight is there like the revelation of book, the sudden impact of a master, spirit, the sense of window flung wide open to the universe ? It is the adventure of the mind....

Answer the following questions :

5x1=5

1. Why does the author wander around the book shelves ?
2. What do the Persian rugs tells us ?
3. What makes a house characterless according to the passage ?
4. Books are not the best part of equipment of a house. True/false
5. Which word in the passage mean 'happiness' ?
