The students arranged the lunch for the kids in orphanage. Students themselves served the food to everyone. The sense of service to the society was seen at it's best among all the students.

They played the games with the kids like cricket, football and other games. They also entertained the kids with dance and mimicry sessions. The students told the smile and happiness on the faces of kids were priceless.

The students also did the story telling session with the kids where they told the kids different stories of Panchatantra, which taught good morals and the sense of right and wrong among the kids of orphanage.

The students spent almost their entire day with those kids of orphanage. They shared that this experience had filled them joy and happiness. In this manner they learnt the happiness in sharing and giving to the needy.

The outcome of the program:

The kids in the orphanage were overwhelmed with love for the students. They enjoyed the time spent with students of the college. They like the stories of Panchatantra and were also interactive with the students in understanding the story.

Our students also learnt the joy and happiness of giving and sharing. This event made the students being grateful to God for whatever they have got in the world. It also filled compassion and helpfulness in their hearts towards the poor, weaker and needy person in the society.
